

PETRELLA BROWN P.L.C. Client's Success Story

Our client temporarily lost her mental capacity due to physical illness and was placed in a memory care facility. As a result, her son became her trustee. When our client regained her mental ability, her son refused to allow her to return home and filed for guardianship over her. We amended our client's estate documents and aggressively represented her in probate court. We protected her assets. While vigorously representing our client, we did not get in the way of our client and her son mending their relationship. With some safeguards in place, our client was able to move back into the comfort of her home in time to plant her summer flower garden!
